Education:

Candi Kloverstrom studied human anatomy at Denver General Hospital school for X-ray Techs. She received a Bachelor of Fine Art Degree from the University of Colorado, Denver Center focusing on drawing, life-drawing, painting in oils and took art classes from Rocky Mountain School of Art and Design, Denver. She studied watercolor from Betty Demauree still using some techniques. She studied Mark Carver's techniques portraits through his on-line classes. He is a nationally acclaimed artist known for his portraits of presidents. She follows Andrew Tischler, an international artist known for his realism of portraits and landscapes.

Style:

Today Candi Kloverstrom works exclusively in oils blending of realism and impressionism. Her favorite subject matter are portraits and the human figure. But she often veers off to paint a landscape or floral.
